Day 22 – “RESILIENCE IN A CONTEXT OF GEOPOLITICAL COMPETITION”

The fifth edition of the National Defence Seminar takes place on November 22nd, at the National Defence Institute (IDN), in Lisbon.

This seminar aims to promote a debate on institutional resilience strategies in the face of challenges posed by the current dynamics of systemic competition.

This day's debates will be open to the public, with online broadcasting through the National Defence Youtube channel.

The National Defence Seminar is an initiative of the Minister of National Defence, organized in partnership with the Institute of National Defence, whose objective is the annual promotion of debates related to this area of sovereignty, bringing together actors with direct action in the development and implementation of National Defence policies and various professionals from the community in general, with an interest in these matters.

Through this seminar, National Defence seeks to identify relevant challenges to its universe and reflect on possible answers and solutions, while continuing to promote closer ties with society through participation in increasingly broad and enriching debates.
